25TH ANNIVERSARY OF 9/11 ATTACKS

2,977 lighted drones—one for each of the victims who died in the terror attacks—joined together to replicate the “full architectural scale” of the twin World Trade Center Towers as they once stood in 2001. The 2977 Lights Over New York Harbor was sponsored by the New York Foundation for the Arts. The image complemented the annual “Tribute in Light,” the two light beams that shine into the night sky over Lower Manhattan every September 11th.

FOR LOVE OF COUNTRY!

While living in his native Cuba, Arturo Sandoval was influenced by jazz musicians Charlie Parker, Clifford Brown and Dizzy Gillespie. In 1977, he met Gillespie who became his friend and mentor and helped him defect from Cuba while on tour with the United Nations Orchestra. Sandoval became a naturalized citizen in 1998. His life was the subject of the film “For Love or Country: The Arturo Sandoval Story” (2000), starring Andy Garcia.

Sandoval has won four Grammy Awards, Billboard Awards and one Emmy Award. On November 20, 2013, President Barack Obama presented him with the Presidential Medal of Freedom. Mr. Sandoval has performed the National Anthem many times and last year submitted his video for the annual Taps Across America, National Moment of Remembrance held every year on Memorial Day. He is a true American patriot!

2026 Order of St. Sebastian Award

National Commander Larry Wulf is completing 55 years as a member after joining the Catholic War Veterans St. Jude Thaddeus Post 1675 in 1971, while serving on active duty in the U.S. Navy. He retired from the trucking industry after a 30-year career, then as a school bus driver until his second retirement.

After several years of membership, he was elected to serve as Commander of Post 1675 for a tenure that would last 12 years. During that time, he would found the award-winning Post 1675 Color Guard. He also began a program of providing newly ordained seminarians with their first chalice. He represented CWV in numerous local parades and devoted time to visiting Veterans in local hospitals, offering companionship and support. Larry organized holiday dinners for Veterans. Larry regularly called members who were ill to check on their well-being and offer assistance. Post 1675 earned recognition as one of the finest posts in Ohio and throughout the country.

He would go on to hold multiple terms as Department of Ohio Executive Director under several Department Commanders. Over the years, he chaired several national committees and received multiple national awards from Bishop Protector Higgins and National Commanders Finkel and Crawford.

He then served with distinction as Department of Ohio Commander for 13 years. He was instrumental in establishing the Department of Ohio Teckman Fund, an initiative that supported member recruitment and strengthened the financial stability of the Department. He met with the Bishop of Toledo to foster cooperation between the Diocese and parishes to introduce the benefits of membership in the CWV. Larry played a leading role in establishing 5 new posts within the Department. He personally supported fundraising efforts at every post, displaying unwavering dedication to the CWV organization and its members.

He was elected as National Commander, serving for 3 years. In this capacity, he traveled around the country to bring visibility to the importance of leadership. In addition to establishing four new posts nationwide, he implemented a grant foundation to further support the organization's mission. He initiated a review and update of the CWV website. As both Department and National Commander, he represented the CWV and Auxiliary at Veterans Day ceremonies at Arlington National Cemetery and St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York. Over the years, he attended the funerals of many Veterans, paying tribute to their service with dignity and respect. His commitment to his faith and the service of Veterans has remained steadfast through his years of leadership.

William J. Boulay

Department of Maryland Commander

Charles Carroll Post 1961

Ellicott City, Maryland

The Department of Maryland proudly nominated its Commander, William J. Boulay Commander, U.S. Navy Retired, for this year's Order of St. Sebastian Award. "Bill" Boulay graduated from the U.S. Naval Academy with a B.S. in Ocean Engineering in 1974. He began his Navy career as a Surface Warfare Officer in USS SOUTH CAROLINA (CGN 37) as the reactor controls officer. He would subsequently serve on four more combatants during his career.

While serving as Executive Officer in USS CONYNGHAM (CGN 37), he led the rescue of USS STARK (FFG 17) after it was hit by Iraqi missiles in the Arabian Gulf. His shoreside duty included, during Operation Wind and Desert Storm, service as Executive Assistant for the Director of Naval Technology in the Office of Naval Research, and as Director for Surface Programs, Office of the Deputy Asst SECNAV for Safety and Survivability. The Secretary of Defense tapped him to coordinate the mitigation of a major oil spill in the Persian Gulf during the liberation of Kuwait.

His final tour was in command of the Technical Representative Office at the Johns Hopkins University Applied Physics Laboratory. He retired from active duty in 1994. His service did not end there, as he transitioned to a civilian career helping to manage the Navy's Science and Technology programs until he fully retired in 2022. Bill is most proud of the fact that he served as Catholic Lay Leader and Eucharistic Minister on five ships, and as the Religious Affairs Officer on four of them, performing many of the duties of an embarked Chaplain. In many ways, this collateral duty formed his natural affinity towards the Catholic War Veterans as he found that he could serve God, Country and Home simultaneously.

In 2010, Bill was a founding member of Post 1961, the Charles Carroll Post in Ellicott City, Maryland and served initially as its 3rd Vice Commander. He was elected Post Commander a few years later, a position he still holds. He was subsequently elected Third Vice Commander of the Department of Maryland. He assumed the duties of Department Commander in 2022, a few months before the Baltimore National Convention. It was during that convention that Bill first displayed his leadership value to the Catholic War Veterans. Working with the Convention Committee and his Westminster post commander, he organized an effective transportation system, and provided on site scouting and recommendations for activities and dining.

Following the success of the convention, he was elected as the Chairman of the 2025 Convention Committee. Additionally, he was appointed as Commander of the CWV Southeast Region. In this title, he represents National Commanders at functions in the Washington, DC area. He currently also serves on the National level as Lead National Director. He has transformed Post 1961 into a "virtual post," with meetings held online via Zoom, which has drawn new members who do not live in the vicinity of any active post. His efforts have begun to turn around the losses during the pandemic. He and his wife Patricia have just celebrated 50 years of marriage. Their family includes two married daughters and five grandchildren.

ST. CASIMIR POST 1764

IN BALTIMORE HONORS STUDENT WRITERS

St. Casimir Catholic War Veterans Post 1764 in Baltimore once again sponsored its annual student essay contest for local 7th and 8th graders. The competition challenged students to explore the powerful connection between deep faith and military service while honoring our nation's heroes.

This year, students were asked to research individuals who walked into the most dangerous places on earth—not to fight, but to bring peace. The chosen topic was “Heroes of Faith Under Fire: Military Chaplains on the Path to Sainthood.” Catholic military Chaplains serve on the front lines without ever carrying a weapon. Students selected one of three extraordinary American Chaplains currently being considered for sainthood.

FAITH UNDER FIRE

Servant of God Father Joseph Verbis Lafleur (WWII): In a brutal prison camp, Fr. Lafleur gave away his own rations to keep others alive. When their prison ship was torpedoed, he refused to escape, instead staying in the sinking hold to push dozens of men up the ladder to safety.

Venerable Father Emil Kapaun (Korean War): Famously celebrating Mass on the hood of a jeep, Fr. Kapaun refused escape to stay with the wounded. He ultimately died in a POW camp after repeatedly risking his life to steal food for starving soldiers. He was posthumously awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Servant of God Father Vincent Capodanno (Vietnam War): Known as “The Grunt Padre,” he lived in the same harsh conditions as his Marines. He died on the battlefield while running into enemy gunfire to minister to the wounded and shield a medical corpsman. He also received the Congressional Medal of Honor posthumously.

PRESENTATION OF AWARDS

The leadership and membership of St. Casimir's Post are incredibly proud of each student's research, effort and heart. The exceptional quality of the essays made a significant impression beyond the post. The awards were presented on the last day of school Mass, attended by all the school students, family members and friends. In recognition of their achievements, Maryland Governor Wes Moore and Delegate Ric Metzgar both issued Official State Citations to all the participating students. In addition to the state honors, each participant received a monetary gift and a Pope Leo XIV Rosary from St. Casimir Post 1764.

Generosity Tells A Powerful Story About The CWV

Individual acts of generosity appear modest when viewed separately. Taken together, though, they tell a powerful story about the work being done in the name of the Catholic War Veterans. A review of Post 1836 Auxiliary accomplishments over the past year presents some pleasant surprises sure to raise eyebrows! Our Auxiliary Unit alone provided a total of $10,235.00 in documented assistance to Veterans. This assistance included:

- ✪ $4,650.00 for 186 Christmas shoebox gifts
- ✪ $1,635.00 in comfort, recreational and mixed-support donations, including bingo refreshments, games, puzzles, books, sensory items, and support for Veterans activities.
- ✪ $150.00 in handmade Veterans Day cards

Some of these were large, coordinated efforts. Others were personal donations made by individuals who saw a need and responded. Every contribution was an expression of love, respect and care for our Veterans. Every person who donated, organized, transported, packed or distributed these items deserves our sincere gratitude. We thank our members for helping Post 1836 demonstrate through action what it means to continue serving.

Unmanned Surface Vessel Rescues Two Downed Airmen

A U.S. Navy-operated autonomous surface vessel (ASV) built by Saronic rescued two U.S. Army aviators after their AH-64 Apache helicopter crashed off the coast of Oman, marking what appears to be the first publicly reported personnel recovery conducted by an unmanned surface vessel.

According to U.S. Central Command (CENTCOM), the helicopter went down while conducting patrol operations. The two crew members were rescued within two hours and were reported in stable condition. The rescue was carried out by U.S. Naval Forces Central Command and the U.S. 5th Fleet's Task Force 59, the Navy's dedicated unit for integrating unmanned systems and artificial intelligence into maritime operations.

President Trump later posted on social media that the Apache had been shot down by Iranian forces while operating over the Strait of Hormuz. Reuters, citing a CENTCOM spokesperson reported that a Saronic Corsair autonomous surface vessel was dispatched to recover the pilots from the water. "The drone picked them up and transported them to another location on the water where they were hoisted up to a helicopter for further transport."

While details of the recovery operation remain limited, the mission represents a significant milestone for both Task Force 59 and Saronic, one of the fastest-growing companies in the maritime sector. The vessel involved in the rescue was Saronic's Corsair, a 24-foot autonomous surface vessel designed for maritime security, surveillance, protection and logistics missions. The diesel-powered platform is capable of carrying payloads of up to 1,000 pounds and operating over distances exceeding 1,000 nautical miles without a crew onboard. Corsair combines radar, cameras, satellite communications, onboard computing, and autonomous navigation software that allows the vessel to operate independently while maintaining awareness of surrounding traffic and hazards.

The successful operation comes just six months after the Navy awarded Saronic a $392 million production contract for its autonomous vessels, marking one of the fastest transitions from prototype to production in recent Navy acquisition history. Earlier this year, Saronic completed a multi-day test program involving eight Corsair vessels operating continuously more than 70 nautical miles offshore. The vessels logged more than 4,500 nautical miles while conducting autonomous harbor transits, long-range patrols, communications-denied operations and multi-day loiter missions. The tests successfully validated the vessel's ability to manage fuel consumption and power usage.

The Austin, Texas-based company has positioned itself as both a maritime developer and shipbuilder, arguing that the United States must expand industrial capacity to compete with China's growing dominance. Rather than collecting intelligence or conducting surveillance, the Corsair was tasked with recovering personnel from the water and transporting them to safety, an operation traditionally performed by crewed rescue craft. As navies increasingly seek ways to extend operational reach while reducing risk to personnel, this mission may provide an early glimpse of how these vessels could become a routine part of search and rescue in the years ahead.

MILITARY SEALIFT COMMAND FLEET OILER RECEIVES FIRST PRESIDENTIAL UNIT CITATION AWARDED TO A CIVILIAN-CREWED SHIP

Admiral Karl Thomas, Commander of U.S. Fleet Forces Command (in uniform left), presented the first Presidential Unit Citation ever awarded to a civilian-crewed ship in the Military Sealift Command's 77-year history. The ceremony represented one of the highest national honors ever bestowed upon the U.S. Merchant Marine. When the crew of USNS KANAWHA accepted the citation awarded by President Trump to both KANAWHA (T-AO 196) and USNS WILLIAM McLEAN (T-AKE 12), it recalled President Franklin D. Roosevelt referring to wartime merchant ships as "Ugly Ducklings," but describing them as the Nation's "Fourth Arm of Defense." The ships were recognized as part of the USS GERALD R. FORD Carrier Strike Group during Operation Epic Fury, completing 41 underway replenishments transferring millions of gallons of fuel and thousands of pallets of cargo.
